

A Few of My Passing Thoughts While Walking with My Lord

A while back a woman told me her story of divorce, recovery and how she is now start to date again. It was very moving and I wrote her my first poem since high school, Share the Ride. In her words she loved it. After showing it to several friends, with their encouragement, I continued writing. Later I was approached to write a devotional and it went the same way. I wrote three, and everyone liked them a great deal. In time I put a book together and passed it around. With the encouragement of my friends, I sought publication. I do not have a theology degree. I am merely a Christian, since childhood. I have attended many bible studies and have spent a great deal of time in personal study. Thank you to all of my Christian brothers and sisters, who have encouraged me throughout the writing of this book. For without all of them, it never would have been written and certainly would never have been published.
