Petitioners suffer much by the obstinacy and contemptuous carriage of Robinson, who being a feltmaker by profession, and a freeman of the Company of Haberdashers, a rich and powerful company, thinks thereby to abuse his Majestys letters patent and petitioners to their great prejudice. Pray the Lords to order that Robinson and all others, being near 2,000 in number, who use the art of feltmakers and are free of other companies in London, may be enjoined to submit themselves to and be regulated by the said letters patent and the orders and ordinances made for the government of petitioners, so far as relates to their dealings in the trade of feltmaking. p. Jan. 17. 26, Order of Council on the above petition of the Company of Feltmakers of London. Petitioners having obtained a warrant from the Board for Robinson to answer his misdemeanour, he made his acknowledgment and agreement in August last, before Sir William Becher, clerk of the Council, and then submitted to make a proof piece before petitioners, and to be conformable to their government in all things, which Le has not performed, but continues in his contempt, to the ill example of others, and petitioners great 1639-40.
