

The Confession of a Hyphenated American (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Confession of a Hyphenated American Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was as much metaphysician as physician, declared that every man has a blind spot. If he were living in these war-clouded days he would say - if he were capable of reasoning at a time when the whole world has gone mad - that every man has a seeing spot, and that all the rest of him is blind. He might declare a large portion of humanity stoneblind ;for even the wisest and the fairest among us are in that happy frame of mind in which we believe that we alone have retained vision, now that the world has gone back to the Tohu Vavohu which reigned before the Creator said: Let there be light.About the PublisherForgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
