

Ivory and the Blueberry Turtle (Noahs Park)

Where did the animals go when they left the ark? As the animals left the ark, they scattered far and wide so that once more the earth would be covered by Gods creatures. One small group, though, traveled together. They discovered a beautiful forest where a sparkling waterfall emptied into a peaceful pond. There were berries and nuts to eat and a warm cave for shelter. One of the animals, a wise frog named Ponder, suggested that this was special place, a place made just for them. The other animals agreed, and they decided to make the forest their home. Ponder, who remembered the great man who had saved them, called the forest Noahs Park. These are the adventures of the animals that lived in Noahs Park. In this ninth title of the Noahs Park series, Ivory the elephant discovers the importance of sharing when she tries to hoard all the blueberries.
