

Life and later speeches of Chauncey M. Depew

Mr. Depew has held so many presidencies, and has been a director in so many corporations, that it might easily be supposed he had never declined an office in his life. Yet almost at the beginning of his career he resigned the Ministry to Japan, to which he had been appointed by President Johnson; while one of his latent acts was to refuse the Secretaryship of State, offered to him by President Harrison after Mr. Blaine's resignation of the post in the summer of 1892. The most conspicuous incidents in his life were not his delivery of the dedicatory address at the World's Fair buildings in Chicago, nor yet his oration to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of Washington: they were his voluntary retirement from the competition for the United States Senatorship from New York in 1881 and again in 1884, and his withdrawal from the race for the Republican nomination for the Presidency at Chicago, in 1888. Few living men have been called upon to fill so many offices of honor and responsibility, yet still fewer, perhaps, have waived so many opportunities. Chauncey M. Depew, LL. D., President of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Co. (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and do not occur in the book.)
