

Our Street

Gilda O'Neill's Our Street focuses on the lives of Londoners in the East End during the Second World War. Showing the concerns, hopes and fears of these so-called ordinary people Our Street illustrates these times by looking at the every day rituals which marked the patterns of daily life during WWII. It is an important book and also an affectionate record of an often fondly remembered, more communal, way of life that has all but disappeared. Every page is a delight. Every chapter made vivid by a writer who has poured heart and soul into her book Daily Mail. A rich tapestry... a finely detailed examination of our not so distant past. Her book is as much a piece of history as the accounts it contains Time Out. Gilda O'Neill was born and brought up in the East End. She left school at fifteen but returned to education as a mature student. She wrote full-time and continued to live in the East End with her husband and family. Sadly she died on 24 September 2010 after a short illness.
