

Perplexity: Bringing My Questions to God

People have questions. The darkness of approaching death, the fear of financial futility, the mess of difficult marriages, the wreck of unfulfilling work long is the list of those things that bring people, even Gods people, to despair. Add to this the relentless pressures and grievous sinfulness of our day, and sometimes it is all too much. For some, the sense of anxiety, the fearsomeness of life, leads to panic attacks shortness of breath, tightness in the chest, clammy sweating fear and inward horror. Christian people are not exempt from all this. In the struggle to grow in grace and walk with Christ, there are many kinds of deep and dark valleys. In these valleys in these times of intense difficulty, we have questions. We even have complaints. We are perplexed by what is going on and our own passions in the midst of it. And there is no darkness like that which comes when we cannot seem to find God. We are so bent to believe the certainties of our difficulty that we flirt with despair. The slow fire of our misery consumes us leaving ashes and smoke in place of our joy. So we are baffled perplexed. The Psalms give us voice in these times. They help us to speak to God in the midst of these situations of life. This study in nine of these Psalms will encourage and challenge you. They will help you to bring your questions, perplexity and troubles to God. For there you will find help and hope.
