

The Lessons of the Ages (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Lessons of the Ages
My Guide and I.A Friend once met me in the dark,
And through much cunning and fine art,
Said: Come with me, the way seems fair,
Well walk along, a loving pair,
And give ourselves to dutys call,
Not asking Self or love at all,
But simply say in God we trust.
Follow what will, come what must,
Our standard high, our faith supreme,
Humanity the living stream
That we must better if we can,
By lending will to heart and hand.
Unfurl our banner for the right,
The only power that giveth might;
Step down, if need be to secure
The gem called Charity, whose birth is pure,
And greater than a diadem
To crown the hearts of living men.
To angels help we will give heed,
Asking whenever much in need,
And if the way seems filled with doubt
Well never stop and turn about,
But bravely on, the uphill side
Oft times presents the loveliest ride.
And in our journey on together
