

Sermons: From the Fowls of the Air and the Lilies of the Field, or Lessons of Faith Beside the Common Path of Life (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Sermons: From the Fowls of the Air and the Lilies of the Field, or Lessons of Faith Beside the Common Path of Life We know no better illustration of the error in question, than may be found In some of our popular h) mns. Even Watts, the great master of our public praise, is by no means always in keeping with that blessed book from which he has derived his songs. We the more readily select from him, because he abundantly corrects his own error and because the contrast of Watts with Watts will make our own views more plain.
