Not illustrated. 1845 Excerpt: ...this be all your party hath to 11- say, I will make them conform themselves, or else I will harry them out of the land, or else do worse. Thus ended the second days Conference; and the third began on the Wednesday following, many knights, civilians, and doctors of the law being admitted thereunto, because the High Commission was the principal matter in debate. His Majesty.--I understand that the parties named in the high commission are too many and too mean, and the matters they deal with base, such as ordinaries at home in their courts might censure r. Archbishop of Canterbury.-- It is requisite their number should be many; otherwise I should be forced oftentimes to sit alone, if, in the absence of the lords of the council, bishops and judges at law, some deans and doctors, were not put into that commission, whose attendance I might command with the more authority. I have often complained of the meanness of matters handled therein, but cannot remedy it; for though the offence be small, that the ordinary may, the offender oftentimes is so great and contumacious, that the ordinary dare not punish him, and so is forced to crave help at the high commission. A nameless Lord The proceedings in that court are like the Spanish inquisition, wherein.J men are urged to subscribe more than law requireth, and by the oath ex officio forced to Barlow, ib. p. 85. s I dare not guess him, for fear of failing. accuse themselves; being examined upon twenty A.
